Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Commencement, July 30, 1873 In introducing the Addresses, Mr. Salisbury, the President, said: Will you permit me to bring to notice an interesting circumstance. John Boynton, Esq., the original founder of this Institute, died before these Walls were erected. Hon. Ichabod Washburn, the founder of the Mechanical Department, died on August 30, 1868, several months before his department was in active operation. He said he desired and hoped to forge the first piece of iron for the shop, but he was not permitted. We rejoice that with the death of these honored benefactors, their sentiments and the thoughts and reasonings which are the framework of the Institute did not die. They still live, not only in the well-considered documents of gift, but also in the persons of the confidential counsellors whose judgment was paramount in determining the scope and system of the enterprise, and they have added more valuable labor as Trustees in the first years. These wise counsellors are with us to-day, and they will address you. Address of Hon. Emory Washburn. The occasion furnishes me the subject of my remarks. In taking part in the closing exercises of an academic year of a school of practical science, I hardly feel at liberty to go outside of the claims of popular education, as we have seen it illustrated here today. In the half hour to which I am limited, not only must I confine myself to a single topic, but even of that I must omit much that would suggest itself as proper for the occasion. I will not stop, when speaking to a Massachusetts audience, to show that, for a young man starting...
