Though we do not talk much, we like to be near each other. Another day and they have not come, and another night of anxiety before us. THE WANDERERS RETURN. Thursday, August 17. I was awakened very early this morning, as soon as it was light, by hearing Hillhouse bustling about making a fire in the stove, as if in a hurry for his breakfast. I dressed as quickly as possible, and hastened out to see what it meant--for it was only four o'clock. When I asked for an explanation, he said: I am going to hunt those men. I can't stand this any longer. I have laid awake almost all night thinking about them. What can you do? You will be lost yourself. No danger of that. I will go back on the road as far as Green River, get...
